I would like to bring to your attention a scam that targets our vulnerable and elderly community members. The scam involves the fraudster telephoning the potential victim and claiming to be a detective from a London police station. The caller may have some personal details such as the name of the potential victim and can sound very convincing. The caller may say that they have arrested someone who is in possession of stolen bank cards or that they are working with the banks investigating a possible cloning of the victim's bank cards. They ask the victim to call 999 to verify the authenticity of the claim, however the fraudster keeps control of the phone line and the victim will receive a false message confirming the scam. The victim may then be asked for the bank account or card details or to withdraw a sum of cash from their bank and to hand this over to a courier who will be sent to their address. Some victims who have fallen prey to this scam have been conned out of thousands of pounds. Please DO NOT give out any personal details and notify Police.

WHAT'S HAPPENING IN YOUR AREA?

During September I have continued to carry out high visibility patrols across my Beat, especially at the parks and green areas, engaging with communities and taking your views on board at this continuing unusual time. Speaking to the youths, both at schools and in their spare time, has seen a reduction in anti-social behaviour. Much of my engagement with communities has been by virtual meetings, but it is important for us to adapt a new way of partnership working. As the evenings get darker, I would encourage you all to be vigilant around your own home security to ensure that you make it difficult for criminals. Please look out for each other and report anything suspicious to the police or Crimestoppers to help us to understand the issues happening in your neighbourhoods.
